THE VARIETIES OF HISTORICAL EXPERIENCE

Spring Quarter Conference

APR 4 – 5, 2014
Alumni House

5555 S. Woodlawn Avenue
Free and open to the public

This conference will examine the practices that socially produce and legitimize notions about the relation between past and present, and the affective and experiential states that inform those practices and the reception of their results. Participants will examine what the varieties of historical experience in Western societies may reveal about historical consciousnesses and bring ethnographic attention to current practices as a necessary first step on the way to an empirically informed anthropology of history.

Hosted by Professors Stephan Palmié (University of Chicago) and Charles Stewart (University College London)
