Data as Critique: New Computational Approaches to the Study of Culture

FRIDAY, MAY 9, 2014

1 p.m. – 5:30 p.m.

Regenstein Library,
Room 122

1100 E. 57th Street

Free and open to the public

Persons with disabilities who need an accommodation in order to participate in this event should contact the Neubauer Collegium for Culture and Society at collegium@uchicago.edu or 773.702.6030.

This one-day conference will bring together new scholarship on the history and sociology of global culture and explore how large-scale computational techniques can extend an already century old dialogue between scholars in the humanistic and social sciences. The conference will highlight research that cuts across the traditional division of qualitative methods (hermeneutics, historicism) from quantitative, data-driven ones (text-mining, network analysis).

Hosted by UChicago Professors Hoyt Long (Department of East Asian Languages and Civilizations) and Richard So (Department of English)

A conference associated with Global Literary Networks, a project of the Neubauer Collegium for Culture and Society.
