ABOUT THE PROGRAM

The residency program gives preference to artists whose work examines themes relevant to South Side communities and engages issues of race and ethnicity. Artists applying for the program should have a demonstrated history of rooting their practice in community engagement. The Artist-in-Residence program is typified by active immersion in public-facing aspects of Arts + Public Life and the Center for the Study of Race Politics and Culture. During the ten months, artists are often present leading public workshops, programs, artists talks, and hosting studio visits, dinners, screenings, and/or readings.

The residency is for individual Chicago-based artists, with a preference given to artistic practices which:

- Examine themes relevant to South Side communities both on and off University of Chicago’s Hyde Park campus
- Encourage open, ongoing, and active community participation
- Explores dimensions of ethnicity and race—expansive cultural implications and routine individual experiences
- Privilege research methodologies as an integral part of the creative process
- Deepen understandings of race, power, class, gender, and sexuality, as well as their interconnections and implications

ARTISTS WILL RECEIVE:

- Access to University of Chicago’s libraries
- $1,000 monthly stipend
- Studio space at the Arts Incubator in Washington Park
- Budget for materials
- Access to university faculty and staff
- Support for a final exhibition or culminating program at the Arts Incubator in the summer of 2020
- Studio visits — organized and informal
