Professor Terry M. Moe

Professor Terry M. Moe is the William Bennett Munro Professor of Political Science at Stanford University and a senior fellow at the Hoover Institution, where he is a member of the Institution's Koret Task Force on K-12 education. He has written extensively on public bureaucracy and the presidency, as well as the theory of political institutions more generally. His seminal book with John E. Chubb, Politics, Markets, and America's Schools, is among the most influential and controversial works on education to be published during the last two decades—showing how politics shapes and undermines the public schools and arguing the value of school choice. His most recent books are Relic: How Our Constitution Undermines Effective Government--And Why We Need a More Powerful Presidency (with William Howell, 2016), and Presidents, Populism, and Crisis of Democracy (with William Howell, 2020). He has also written extensively on the politics of American education, with his most recent book being The Politics of Institutional Reform: Katrina, Education, and the Second Face of Power (2019). He received the Thomas B. Fordham Prize for Excellence in Education. He is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.
