

CLINICAL MEDICAL ETHICS

The MacLean Center for Clinical Medical Ethics at the University of Chicago is the oldest and largest program in clinical ethics in the world and one of the oldest university bioethics programs in the United States. Clinical medical ethics is a field that examines the practical, everyday ethical issues that arise in encounters among patients, doctors, nurses, allied health workers, and health care institutions. The goal of clinical medical ethics is to improve patient care and outcomes. Since the founding of the MacLean Center and largely through the efforts of its faculty members and fellowship graduates, the study of clinical medical ethics has expanded from the bedside to encompass virtually all aspects of health care. The MacLean Center has trained more than 400 fellows in a one year full-time or part-time program. Current and former MacLean Center fellows and faculty have published more than 170 books. In October 2013, the MacLean Center received the Cornerstone Award from the American Society for Bioethics and Humanities (ASBH) for "outstanding contributions from an Institution that has helped shape the direction of the fields of bioethics and/or medical humanities."

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This conference remembers Dorothy Jean MacLean, who helped create the MacLean Center and was deeply committed to its work. D.J. MacLean believed that education was the best way to improve the world and throughout her life supported many leading educational institutions. The Conference organizers wish to acknowledge and thank Barry and Mary Ann MacLean, who recently retired after 25 years as co-chairs of the Center's Advisory Board, for their commitment to the Center and for their help in making this conference possible. We also want to recognize the MacLean Center's new Chair of the Board, Rachel Kohler, and thank her for her guidance and counsel as the Center moves forward.

We wish to acknowledge the Center's distinguished Advisory Board and the following individuals for their support of the MacLean Center: the late Lindy Bergman, Kay and the late Matthew Bucksbaum, Martha and Bruce Clinton and the Clinton Family Foundation, Janet and Craig Duchossois, Ann Dudley and Stan Goldblatt, Keith and Rodney Goldstein, Joan Harris and the Irving Harris Foundation, Connie and Dennis Keller and the Keller Family Foundation, Rachel Kohler and Mark Hoplamazian, Richard and Michelle Parrillo, Carole and Gordan Segal, Brenda Shapiro and the Shapiro Family Foundation, Bryan Traubert and the Pritzker-Traubert Family Foundation, and the late Sarita Warshawsky.

We especially wish to thank our outstanding faculty as well as all former and current fellows and faculty for making the MacLean Center the leading program in clinical medical ethics in the United States and internationally.

Special thanks to Kimberly Conner, Tae Yeon Kim, Christian Lowe, Mike Andersen, and Wendy Tian for their dedication and assistance in organizing this conference.
