

University of Chicago Materials Research Center

Family Science Night

Are you interested in starting or further developing a Science Night program at your school?

The Materials Research Center partners with K-12 schools to provide support in designing and running Family Science Nights throughout the school year. This is a free service and our team of volunteers will bring in supplies, set up science stations, and run interactive demonstrations for families. Additionally, we encourage students to showcase their own science projects alongside our stations. Families will be able to engage in meaningful, hands-on science activities during this fun-filled evening.

For more information, contact chrisahn@uchicago.edu.

