ADAM SINGS IN THE TIMBER

Please join the Neubauer Collegium for a parade and reception to celebrate the opening of Apsáalooke Women and Warriors on March 12. The parade will be led by a group of Apsáalooke dancers, drummers, elders, and participants on horseback. The exhibition, organized in collaboration with the Field Museum and the Apsáalooke community, highlights the art and culture of the Apsáalooke people, also known as the Crow. Two tipis—on the terrace and east lawn—transform the Neubauer Collegium into a gathering place for celebrating Apsáalooke traditions and beliefs. The gallery, reimagined as the inside of a tipi, evokes an intimate domestic space, with a vibrant installation conceived by Apsáalooke scholar Nina Sanders.
