The Chicago Center for Teaching and Learning invites you to apply for our Teaching Consultants Program

Teaching Consultants are graduate students trained by the CCTL in observing teaching strategies in the classroom, assessing student engagement, and communicating formative feedback on teaching.

Teaching Consultants support the mission of the CCTL by conducting Mid-Course Reviews and Individual Teaching Consultations for graduate student and postdoctoral teachers across the University of Chicago.

Teaching Consultants also attend 2 meetings each quarter, where they have the opportunity to engage with and discuss scholarship on teaching and learning, share with one another their consultation experiences, and workshop and collaborate on best practices.

Teaching Consultants are hired on a quarterly basis and paid a quarterly stipend. TCs may choose to work throughout the school year, or work as many quarters as their academic schedules allow.

Applications should be sent via email to Lestra Cole, Program Administrator (lcole2@uchicago.edu).

Applications will be accepted on a rolling basis until all positions are filled. Priority deadline is March 7, 2022 for the Spring 2022 Quarter.

Applications consist of:
- A cover letter specifying your interest and qualifications for the position
- A CV highlighting your teaching experience and pedagogical training (courses, workshops, etc.)

For more information about this program, please contact Joseph Lampert (josephlampert@uchicago.edu).